Theft of Property

Theft is theft no how minor one thinks it is. Over the last few months the rifle house has had several items come up missing. The most notable has been the RCBS press that was removed from the reloading bench. Whoever stole this press spent some time removing it since it was fastened down with security bolts. The person responsible had to have studied the situation for a while and devise a scheme to remove it when no one was around to witness their illegal actions.

Most recently, staplers we provide to put up targets have come up missing. I have replaced them twice already since June. I was at the rifle range one evening last week and noticed they are missing again, but this time they have been replaced with someone's broken and rusting models. Leaving your old broken junk in place of something new still constitutes theft.

At this point I am inclined not to replace any more items that come up missing. Each and every member that uses the rifle range should be on the lookout for persons taking or abusing gun club property. We cannot and will not tolerate this kind of behavior. Any person caught in the act of theft regarding club property will be punished to the full extent of the law.

Happy Shooting!
